

A1: My Favorite Application

Messenger is not really my most favorite application since I am an avid gamer. If I were to actually choose my favorite application, it would most likely be a game, but for this activity I choose something that is out the realm of games. Messenger is more of the application I used the most than my favorite application.

So, why is messenger is my favorite or daily longest used application? Messenger is my most used application because of its efficiency in term of communication. In Philippines, load requires money and other application are less known compared to messenger. I admire the features of messenger, but I look more into the fact that it is cheap and widely used to my location.

Messenger is a communication platform that replaces texting in its field. Its new features compared to messenger or other communication application is the ability to calls, video calls, group chats, set polls, send photos, send videos, send a wide variety of emojis, apply themes, set nicknames, and post stories. For me I mostly used messenger for one-way communications, but the additional features are also useful in certain scenarios like how group chats allow you to talk to several people at one time, polls make it easier to make decisions as a group, video chats make communication more life, sending photos and videos are done easier and the vast amount of emoji, posting of stories, setting up themes and nicknames gives communicating more aesthetic
